

CONFIDENTLY LEADING THROUGH
COLLABORATION, CUSTOMIZATION AND CREATIVITY

Board Report March 2025 Achievement & Leadership

OSBA Capital Conference

The Leadership and Learning Department has submitted a proposal to present at the 2025 OSBA Capital Conference in Columbus, Ohio. The title of our presentation is Bridging Gaps: managing educator differences through collaboration. Amber Clay-Mowry and I will be joined by Mr. Dave Jones in presenting the technological side of the group dynamics platform we are developing. More information to come.

Pilot Program

The Leadership and Learning Department is developing new ways for districts to plan and visualize district action planning, as well as using group dynamics to move change initiatives forward. We are lucky enough to have string partners that are willing to invest time and resources into making positive changes. Lexington Schools has agreed to work through a pilot program next year to reimagine action planning, professional development, and facilitating shared leadership. We hope to have regular updates as the pilot progresses.

Professional development and Onboarding Workshop

The Leadership and Learning Department will be hosting a PD and onboarding workshop on March 20, 2025. We will assist districts in navigating their collective bargaining agreements, staff handbooks, school calendars, and school culture barriers to design a year-long professional learning and training plan for all staff and educators.

Principal and Leader Network

We held our latest principal/leader network meeting on March 6th, hosting 20 area leaders. Mr. Craig Burford, Executive Director of OESCA, presented a 90-minute legislative update and state budget review. The information was invaluable. So much so, we have invited Mr. Burford to present again for the superintendent in May. His presentation and information are shared below.
